

Syllabus – Gynaecology and Obstetrics

The students will participate in daily clinical activities at a hospital gynaecologic and obstetric ward for a period of 3 weeks 8 hours/day/ 5 days/week. They will work under direct supervision of an experienced clinician.

Their activities will include taking history from patients, performing physical assessments, participating in decisions about laboratory and other tests. Students will participate in formulating diagnosis and differential diagnosis and in care planning.

Students perform the following procedures under direct supervision of an experienced clinician:

- daily rounds
- assessing outpatients
- changing dressings, treating wounds (direct performance or assisting to an experienced clinician)
- gynaecologic assessment including colposcopy
- Assessing pregnant patients in outpatient clinics
- Obstetric assessment
- Observation of Caesarian Section or other instrumental deliveries
- Assessment of newborn
- Care of puerpera

Students participate in grand rounds and in formulating daily notes and discharge letters. Any entry into the medical records has to be signed by a competent clinician.

Students participate in any interdisciplinary meetings organised by the unit. Students are present as observers at endoscopic procedures, ultrasound studies (both gynaecologic and obstetric) and any others specialised procedures, they have to understand the indications and contraindications of these procedures. Students should observe CTG recording and analysis (before and during delivery). Students should perform normal vaginal delivery under direct supervision of an experienced clinician. Students should observe procedures at the operation theatre and assist to the clinicians.

If needed the students can be present at night and weekend shifts.

Students should gain the necessary administrative skills and practice in HAI prevention.
